Emotional Intelligence: Do you have it?

Do you know what one set of talents is the most significant in predicting employee success? Do you know what non-technical skill affects 57% of the success employees have at any job? Do you know what is more important than either education or experience in achieving your career success? Come and learn about Emotional Intelligence (EQ)! The skills of Emotional Intelligence are so powerful that most of the human resource issues that HR professionals deal with are directly related to it. Dr. Red's prior experience as an HR Executive and now as a Business Psychologist helps her deliver her enthusiastic and informative message! Learn how to identify EQ skills and how to develop them in you and your staff!

Dr. N. "Red" Carritte is a Business Psychologist and CEO of "Go Beyond Your Boundaries!" who works with CEOs and their executive teams to enhance their leadership behaviors, identify organizational development needs, and to inspire them towards excellence.

As a Vice President at Baskin Robbins, Metromedia, and other companies, Dr. Carritte previously worked with leaders on 12 mergers and acquisitions, identifying leadership issues and addressing organizational cultural change problems. Now as a business psychologist, she has had the pleasure of coaching executives at companies such as Red Bull Energy Drink, Sweetheart Cup, The American Red Cross, University of Phoenix, Co-Op Financial Services, and many others. She speaks at leadership conventions and presents workshops for executives around the country.

The meeting will be held on February 2, 2012 at the Tongue Point Job Corps Bistro, 37573 Old Highway 30, Astoria, from 11:30am to 1:00pm.

You need not be a member to attend. Register online at www.lchrma.org. The cost, including lunch prepared by the Culinary Arts students in the tasteful Bistro on campus, is $20.

Registration Deadline: January 27, 2012

All proceeds from this event will benefit the SHRM Foundation.
